A NEW ENCYCLOPEDIA
—The Turkey

Most men have gone on increase in strength and girth, and look distinctly appetite. This is good news.
And how they haughty bosom swell.
What a time they can round and heave! That's all right.
For state cents a pound!
If the turkey is a fat bird,
They then forestall him down.
Each endearing and flattering would plunge him into green,
He'd be a fat bird, and fat
that's all right.
He's turned and waded and fed.
He doesn't guess he make him fat
because we wish him dead.
That pride is followed by a fall.

And Many of Them

In the formula which is ages old, but never lacking, and never improved upon, the Bulletin extends to every reader the wish for a "Merry Christmas and a happy New Year."

No Longer a Joke.

A Toronto couple have found to their sorrow that smuggling is now an indelible offence, and will have a year in jail in which to ponder the matter. It is foreseeable that Vancouver is due to suffer a sudden loss of population about the time the report of the customs Commission makes its appearance.

Real "Complications".

Constitutional authorities, who seem to have exhausted the speculative possibilities of the London proclamation as to the status of the dominions, may find an interesting subject for exploitation in a four-cornered controversy that has arisen down in an obscure port in Mexico. A French schooner, commanded by a British captain, was captured at sea by U.S. prohibition enforcement officers. It escaped, with two of the officers aboard, and took refuge in the Mexican port of Mazatlan. Now Mexico City, Washington, Paris and London are quoting precedents and citing precedents by cablegram in the attempt to find out what happens next.

A Bold Tribute.

A British air liner started the other day from London for Karachi, on a trial flight, after which it will proceed to India, via Colombo, Madras and Ceylon. A passenger testifies to the satisfactory nature of that means of travel by stating that a lady passenger was able to communicate with him by typewriting her reply to questions which he asked her on paper "because of the rapidity with which she can type." The man who does not come to grief will give strong proof of the correctness of Kipling's judgment. Any sort of conveyance in which women could only talk on a typewriter or with a lead pencil would be doomed to commercial disaster in this country.

Placing "Yang".

Whoever is running the publicity end of the war in China has not put the newspaper-reading world under very great obligations to himself up to date, either for completeness or reports of the proceedings or for intelligible sorting out and classifying of the action. A few days ago, General Yang Sen, credited with having an army, large and small, and with having stolen three United States steamboats on the Yang-Tze.

It is now disclosed that Yang is not a Cantonese leader, but an enterprising chao who has set up his own account and is trying to make a name for himself in the territories between the southern and northern armies. As the southeners continue to advance and the Manchurians are holding their ground and waiting for them that probably explains why Yang wanted the steamboats. In any case it "places" him, both geographically and politically. Undoubtedly he is looking for one or other of the two main contending forces to take rank as a third and minor aspirant for power, while the scene of his operations suggests that the news may come through any day that he has ceased to be a factor in the situation.

The One Road to Peace.

More than nineteen hundred years ago a choir of angels proclaimed the purpose of God to be "Peace on earth."

The anniversary of the proclamation finds China a battle-ground and Europe shuddering in the worst war since it has been fought since 1914. The Balkans, too, are in a state of conflict. Civilization is everywhere threatened, torn at more points than at any time since the close of the greatest of all conflicts.

Poland and Lithuania are glaring across their frontier and moving troops to strategic points.

France and Italy are having bad enough luck by development at Berlin which threatens to sweep away the results of the whole year's work toward the restoration of confidence between them.

France and Italy are watching each other with the keenest of suspicion.

England and France are boasting with apprehension over the new treaty made by Mussolini with Albania.

Hungary is clashing under its Romanian master.

Bulgaria is smothering under the defeat of ambitions for which it has had four wars and sacrificed a generation of young men.

Romania is harassed by internal strife.

In the background stands the Red power at Moscow, plotting and propagandizing world revolution.

From the Baltic to the Pyrenees and the Balkans Europe is an armed camp, where hostility is restrained more by fear than by inclination.

All the elaborate machinery devised to preserve harmony among the nations stands at Geneva, surrounded by a sentiment of discord, powerless to allay the alarms or to avert the threatened catastrophe.

What is the conclusion from this tragic parado? Is it not obvious? God does not guarantee peace; and the League of Nations cannot.

Nothing can do that but the cultivation of "Good will among men."

Christmas Eve

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Get to bed, you little tykes! quit that running to the stairs! Do you want me to have Old Santa come and catch you unaware? Stop that whispering together! Hey, you, Dad, get into that was just the doorbell ringing and not sleepily overhead.

Yes, you know, and after, That singing and that laughter! Or you know, get that duty, and you'll never get that stool!

What's the trouble, now I wonder, what's that shouting all about?

You hear the front door open?" was the servant going on.

Go to bed and stay there, dream of horns and plums!"

In the morning I will let you eat your fill of sugar plums."

Now, isn't Santa knocking?

Yes, I'm sure he'll fill your stocking.

But remember while you're watching for him Santa never comes!

SANTA CLAUS

In the poem, "The Night Before Christmas," we are told that the surprise abiding address of Santa Claus is "That he is as jolly as jollies can be." This makes the classic picture of Santa Claus. He is jolly, but he is also serious, and he is wise in all things. Some gods like Venus and Ceres are benevolent, others, as Cupid and Pan are mischievous. Bacchus is a drunkard, Mars is a warrior, and so on.

Now why? Men create gods in their own image as God creates man in His. Why have we made Santa Claus jolly?

Driving into his subconscience we come to his picture.

Here we find the reason for his merriment. His philosophy is the shortest philosophy in the world, a simple "Give."

When man gives it he is happy; if he is worthy to give, and when we give first of all men must have self-respect. Only the beggar feels worthy to receive, and the beggar is the only person who deserves giving, which Santa Claus conveys up strengthenings of the self-respect of humanity. By the magic of crowd psychology he is able to bring the self-respect of the people into the sheer act of imitation and repetition.

Christmas is the season when we say "God bless you" instead of "God help me" and the phrase becomes a universal expression of the joy of an intensity complex; who sees one magnetized in Santa Claus, the merry god created in the image of our own good nature, and who is the symbol of a temporary rebirth. We are indeed new creatures re-born again. The whole teaching of those plucked at the twinkling of an eye. Who is to turn away from the smile of the King of the world? When a man realizes that he is the equal of any other creature on earth, he is the equal of any other man. And when he reaches the earthworm he once was, then we can see by looking into the psychology of Santa Claus.

There are gods in modern psychology who are more than a god, he is a prophet. When we get it into our bones we are born again. And when we get it into our bones we must keep our self-respect. We must know that we are the seed of the King, brothers of men and sons of God. We must be self-imposed, self-imposed differently, out of the beggar complex which gives rise into the royal ring which gives.

FIRE DRILL IN COLD WEATHER WON'T RECUR

Superintendent Objects To To Bulletin Story, But Gives Assurance

Objections were taken by Superintendent McKee at the school board meeting Thursday night to a story published by the Bulletin, which was based on the signal of the McDonald public school had been recommended for forcing school children, hatless and coatless, into zero weather during fire drill.

Mr. McKee said that the principal had been reprimanded, but admitted that he had been "spoken to" about the occurrence. He also declared that no circular had been sent to parents, but that the circular was to be sent to all parents, not to send people outside during drills in sub-zero weather, and that the circular had been sent as an apology to the parents.

In Public Interest

The Bulletin's information upon which the complaint was based came from a reliable source, and was given personally to the editor after Superintendant McKee had been interviewed. The story was not sensationalized, but was published in the belief that it would be of public interest.

The Bulletin was given to understand that the complainant would not be named, but that the name would be withheld, because of unauthorized publication of the complaint.

Superintendent McKee, in his complaint against the Bulletin story, said that there was no further cause for complaint from parents that children were sent outside during fire-drills in zero or less degrees. The trustees accepted this

McKee Expresses Surprise

William S. McKee, 1926's strongest advocate of the public school system, reacted immediately to the action of the principal, informed the Bulletin Friday. Mr. McKee said that he was surprised to learn that the principal had been reprimanded, and that it would not happen again. He said he did not receive a letter from the trustees.

Mr. McKee has two children, three years apart, and said that the children were forced to go out in the cold, they had been out of the hospital only a few days.

Butterflies and Mosquitos Visit Edmonton For Christmas

It's Fact—Former Found in a Garden and Latter in Greenhouse

Edmonton is in the grip of a cold snap, and it is now to a far greater degree in the Charlesbois home, feeding on sugar, to prove that butterflies and mosquitos visit Edmonton during Christmas week.

Charlesbois was telling other members of the hotel staff all about his strange visitors.

"I suppose you won't believe it," said Charlesbois, head of the barber shop, "but I have seen butterflies and mosquitos in my house."

Charlesbois was referring to his green houses and plants.

Charlesbois was out in his garden on 16th street and was interested by it. It wasn't any winter flying either, the butterflies were flying around the flower beds in the garden. Later he confessed that it was in the greenhouse, which is kept hot.

"But still it goes to show we have butterflies and mosquitos in Edmonton," he concluded.

CLEAR DRIFTS WITH GRADERS

Special to Bulletin

LEEDS, ENGLAND.—Local district council are faced with the task of clearing snowdrifts in the district of massive snowdrifts accumulated during the recent blizzard. A large amount of money would be needed to clear the snowdrifts, so the council has decided to let the contractors do the work. The contractor will be paid £100 per acre, or £100 per acre for each acre cleared, so that the snowdrifts will not be cleared.

Monstrous drifts extending across the plain have completely covered the roads, and large sums were spent in clearing them, so the contractor will immediately fill in the roads.

There is no question of the possibility of graveling the blind road next summer, but decided that the provincial government passing 50 per cent of the cost of the work, so that the government may all pay.

The annual meeting will be held at the town hall on Wednesday, February 16.

Fourth Fireman Dead

Winnipeg Theatre Fire

Canadian Press

WINNIPEG, Dec. 24.—The death [6] of the disastrous fire which Thursday destroyed the Winnipeg Auditorium has brought the total death toll in hospital of Firemen at 14.

Smith was a member of a hose party caught in the debris when it fell into the street. Smith, who was born seven hours and searched him. Three members of the hose party were severely injured.

Experts were that the eight remaining survivors were not seriously injured.

Investigation revealed that in reality the cause of the fire, which resulted in damage estimated at $125,000.

The hostess was assisted in serving tea by Mrs. James Morris and Misses Jessie Wright and Phoebe Lecie.

Think U. S. Buncocd In Junking Big Navy

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—While the United States was scrapping ships and cutting armament to a bare minimum, Canada was increasing its fleet.

Put two or three more ships in the Atlantic and the Pacific, and the large high-band piece of hair and form the ends into a cluster of round puffs. A small amount of clean metallic ribbon across the back of the head, and the hands to a wreath of flowers, the hands with invisible hairpins arrange the curled ends of the hair in the back of the head. With invisible hairpins, however, one can achieve a look without the risk of curling.

For example, a picture-winning soft-top hat with a wide band of hair, a part and a wide band of hair across the back with a few small puffs. A pair of fine hairpins.

By KEN MCCONNELL

Moose Jaw and Edmonton, two fierce rivals, will meet on Christmas Day at 3 o'clock in the afternoon in a scheduled Prairie Professional Hockey game.

Almost everybody but the "posties" are going to the game and they'll be there to cheer him home.

Citizens of both cities expect even worse than they had in the days when the Millers played professional baseball against Edmonton.

The good city has become more enthusiastic over their representatives in this

THE DEACON IS ALMOST SMILING THESE DAYS

Judging by the advance sale of tickets, the well-known and justly celebrated Deacon White has not decided who he is supporting.

Deacon White has not decided who he is supporting. He has not even been surprised if it was the star Power of all stars, St. Louis and McLaughlin, or the new Millers. However, his forwards, Berg, Irving, will be there, and his defense, the Millers, are in time for the game.

WILL HE DECIDE?

Travis has been using an extra pair since his arrival here, but a member of his club has been pushing him to forward his trusty blades on. Travis went to play a game of skates with the Eskimos for Irving, thinking that he could be of service. As a result his own pair is still somewhere, and he has another wire to the miller, "John, will arrive in time for the game, but I'm doubtful."

THE HURDLES

Deacon has Jimmy Evans, Gordie Jackson, and two others who can dress in goal for him. If he can't get his hands on two others who can dress in goal for him, he is to be hoped that the game will be won by a Whiffle combination.

However, visitors' mousey young star in Jack Connally who is a good skater and because these Maroons have the Eskimos into camp on their first visit, the Millers are favored to win tomorrow's game.

But Then

But this is a season of upsets and as Calgary announced a coming of the apple-cart in defeating the Maroons, the Millers, who are in Dakin, can be depended upon to prove that the old adage, "Art Service's young Millers, Art Service's old Eskimos," is true.

However, the visitors' mousey young star in Jack Connally who is a good skater and because these Maroons have the Eskimos into camp on their first visit, the Millers are favored to win tomorrow's game.

A perfect example of every quality that the greatest Cognac should express.

Eddie Collins Goes Back to Athletics

PHILADELPHIA Dec. 24.—Eddie Collins, the star ace of baseball in the American league for nearly a decade, has turned his back on the game to return to the scene of his boyhood days.

Collins, 36, who turned 37 yesterday, made the announcement in a speech at a dinner given him by the New York Americans.

He said he would be ready to capture his seventh American League

CONACHER STARS IN N.Y. VICTORY

BIG "TANK" MAKES PERFECT PASS AND ALSO SCORES GOAL

NEW YORK Dec. 24.—The New York Americans defeated the Pitts- tield Maroons 3-1 in a National League game which was suspended Saturday night.

Conacher recently became a starting star, his perfect pass making possible the first goal, and Hines scored the second.

Season's Greetings!

As we near the trail's end of another year, the spirit of Yuletide causes us to reflect upon the thoughts which this time of year inspries

Among these reflections none are more gladly remembered than the goodwill of the many loyal friendships which continued business association has drawn together. This goodwill we prize more valued, than money or property. And gladly do we assure our many customers that in every effort, for quality of goods, and true service, we shall do dear to continue this goodwill in the future as it has been in the past.

That this Holiday Season may be to each and every one of us a time of Joy and Happiness is our Sincere Greeting

Edmonton City Dairy Limited

Our Friends and Customers

We Take This Opportunity of
Sincerely Thanking You
for your very generous patronage during the past year, and wish you all
